POULTRY

Show is in Full Blast on South Washington.

Poultry fanciers are in their delight this week. The annual exhibit of the Sumner County Poultry and Pet Stock association is being held in one of the rooms on South Washington. There are 450 specimens of poultry on exhibition. And such fine birds!

There are perfect specimens of Buff Plymouth Rocks, Barred Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Cochins, Games, Bantams, Andalusians, Turkeys, Geese and every other kind of poultry. Belgian hares can be seen too—fine specimens of the latest fad in rabbitry. One buck known as "Bobs," named after the English general, is valued at $25. And there are many young Belgian rabbits, five jet black babies included in the lot, which will be a great delight for the children. The rabbits have pedigrees, like fine horses. The poultry show is a good place to go, and the poultry and fan tailed pigeons and Belgian hares are worth seeing. Anyone can take their birds to the show and have them scored for ten cents. Members of the association only can get in on the premium exhibits. If you have a fine hen of cockerel, turkey or plover and want to know what its fine points are, take it to the poultry show and the judge, J. W. Wade of Carthage, Mo., will pass upon it for you. The show will continue until the 21st inst. There is no admission.

The work of scoring the birds on exhibition is being done today. Following are the entries at the show:

W. D. Whitfield—Two pens and a trio of golden seabright bantams. (A "pen" is four hens and a cockerel.)
John Rider—Two pens of silver laced Wyandottes.

Farmers' Institute.

The farmers' institute at Rome Tuesday was well attended, much better than the one in Wellington a few weeks ago. Ye editor attended and was impressed more than ever with the value of such meetings. A few of the valuable suggestions heard there were: Sow wheat early, from Sept. 10 to Sept. 20 and do not sow it deep. Prof. Cottrell objected to early sowing because the Hessian fly, which has made its appearance in the eastern part of the state, never works after severe frost. There is danger to the crop and danger of their increasing in numbers from year to year to the destruction of the wheat industry. He predicts serious losses from that cause during the next few years. He also claims that home grown seed is best. It should be selected by choosing the spots in the field that are the best and fanning out only the shriveled grains. In this the Prof. is doubtless right. The fallacy that seed must be shipped from Russia or some northern country has been exploded many times but it still lives. Kansas can beat the world on several things, such as wheat and corn. All that is needed is care in selecting the seed.

Preston Wyckoff has been especially successful in raising alfalfa. He suggests sowing in the fall on a thoroughly prepared seed bed and recommends disc-
